A TOUCH OF SOMETHING
For the last several years I have been able to get through the winters without any sickness. This last winter though, I have been neglecting my exercise and I guess now I am suffering for it, in more ways than one.

It's bad enough to have congested sinus and bronchitis, but to make it worse I've got a wife, and three secretaries who keep trying to tell me that the only way that I will be able to get better is to go to the doctor and get a shot and some other medication. Why is it that women always feel the only way to overcome an illness is to go to the doctor and get a shot? What ever happened to the good old remedies like mustard plaster? I remember one time when I was young and in the sixth grade. I had been asked to play the main part in the Christmas play and just two or three days before it was due to open, I got a really bad case of bronchitis. My throat was so bad that I couldn't even talk. The principal, Lawrence Green wanted to give my part to Joe (Junior) Lawrence. I wasn't about to give up something I wanted so badly and begged my mother tell them no and that I would be able to be on the program. She promised to give me something that would make me better.

She gave me something, alright. For the next two days, she kept a mustard plaster on my chest. For the uninitiated, it looks sorta like something one might take off a baby, but that was the only resemblance. Right to this day, I have never had anything that worked like that mustard plaster.

It burned my chest till I turned red. I had tears in my eyes from
